

SAVERS 2010 FALL FASHION TRENDS

Oxblood

This deep, dark red – a shade of autumn leaves – is one of the hottest colors this fall. You'll see it on the street in rustic "tweedy" coats, sexy turtlenecks and with vintage leather shoes and handbags. Pair this luxurious color with light gray for a truly fab fall combo. Guys can also easily take advantage of the oxblood trend with plaid shirts or a rich velvet blazer.

Graffiti

Graffiti has moved way beyond outdoor spray paint "tagging" and is now being fully embraced by galleries, hoteliers and even fashionistas. This fall, look for graffiti prints on everything from skinny-leg jeans to knit tops. Create the look yourself by "tagging" a secondhand item of clothing with your own design in fluorescent fabric paint or metallic spray paint.

Military

Great military fashion never goes out of style. This year, traditionally masculine soldier style will be making an appearance in the women's section. Structured coats in thick fabrics, like wool and quilted flannel, with details like epaulets and metal buttons, will be paired with baggy pants and sturdy open-tongued boots. Also look for traditional dresses and blouses in classic military colors, such as olive green and crimson.

Pastels

Perhaps as a tribute to classic 1980's "back-to-school" films, pastels are the new neutral colors for fall. Look for sophisticated jumpsuits, oversized cardigans and socks worn with heels in shades of apricot, mauve and ballet pink.

Lace

Lace is another 1980's staple making a triumphant return this fall. Where will you see it? Everything from delicate lace shawls and frilly trim, to edgier combinations like lace and leather outfits and lace-inspired screen prints, will be popular among the young crowd. And as part of this trend, be on the lookout for a comeback of Madonna's iconic lace gloves.

Dramatic Jewelry

Taking a page from the costume jewelry of the early 1900's, big, bright bling is totally back. Wide bracelets with multi-colored gemstones, oversized crystal rings and earrings and chunky gold chain necklaces will all be hot items this autumn, so keep an eye out for over-the-top vintage pieces to brighten up your fall wardrobe.
